is a tax on guns and ammunition. There's an excise tax, an extra tax, on guns and ammunition that is used for habitat program, supplies a considerable portion of the money in Nebraska that's used for habitat programs. That is an excise tax. It's just like the bike tax. There is also a tax, an excise tax, an extra tax, on fishing gear supported by the people who sell fishing gear. That money is used for fish habitat restoration, for recreational interest in the state of Nebraska and elsewhere. That is an excise tax just like this is, I think generally supported by the people involved in the whole activity. And so this bike tax is no different and I'm not sure why we feel so strongly that we should characterize it as something different. It's a way we have done this kind of thing in this country for a long time, it's a good way of doing it and if the constituencies support it, why should we not assist it? So in the past you have not supported General Fund appropriations. You have let the General Fund appropriation for these activities deteriorate. I hope in the face of that and in the face of the support for this bill and in the face of the precedents that have been set for this kind of support for these kinds of activities that you would see fit to support a modest effort, a bill that raises $120,000, something like that, but which could be immensely helpful as matching funds to encourage cities and counties and NRDs and others, give them support in their trail development work. The...the trail phenomena around the country continues to grow and expand. Most states have latched onto it and are seeing it as a tourist opportunity and developing their opportunities, their resources faster than we are. I'm afraid we're going to wake up one day and...and discover that we had the resources and didn't...and didn't use them, didn't develop them. And we could, and this is one of those times and one of those places when we can make a modest effort that will help in a whole number of different ways including tour...developing tourist attractions in the state. People are traveling all over the country to go down trails to say they've been down this trail or that trail and we have some unique situations in Nebraska. We have a wonderful trails plan that is tourist oriented, that addresses the attractions of many, many different areas in the state and supplements and adds to those distractions (sic) and makes a connection between those attractions. I wish there was time today to show you all of that. But there are wonderful things going on and many, many
